

Phillip William Edwards Barn

The Phillip Edwards Family were pioneers of 1860, landing in the Salt Lake Valley late that season. About 1874 he brought his family to the Charleston area to settle. The Edwards family have been here ever since and made many upbuilding contributions. A son, Phillip William Edwards settled on the corner of 3055 S 3600 W In Charleston, Utah. Here he built a home and this barn. The center section was finished about 1895 and was made of native red pine timbers and lumber. He used it mainly for hay storage and his horses and farming operations.

The barn and farm have remained in the Edwards family for over a hundred years. During the time, the three grandsons; (Douglas, Floyd and Robert) ran it, two lean-tos and other sheds have been added and many other improvements have been made. One brother, Robert, was lost in the World War II. Then Floyd moved his interests to Idaho about 1960. It was about this time that Douglas put new white pine siding on the barn. It is well-preserved and kept painted white for its use for cows and as a dairy barn, with grain and hay storage.

Informant: Douglas C Edwards

3-31-98 rrg

Doug Ed Barn

3-31-98

Tom called him - he became defensive & wondered why we had to write
all successive owners

Phillip Settled 18 yrs... →

1860

Barn Identity

Name of Original Owner: (Pict., Hist., Ped., FGS)

came ~~James~~ Phillip Wm Edwards

together
196 +

Wed 3-24-98 4pm

Douglas M Edwards 654-1243
Address of the Barn: 3000 SO 3550 W

Robert
Douglas
↓

Glen Raymond
Edwards
19. 25 yrs

1890
Material used to build the Barn: Red Pine - plain white

Who actually built the Barn: Phil Wm Edwards

1960

Peculiar characteristics of the Barn:

2 lean to & Doug add
Dairy barn Hay storage
Floor grain storage

Who were the subsequent Owners:

↓
Phil & Carol
Barney

Uses made of the Barn:

over 100 yrs.

Any significant history of the Barn:

Phillip William Edwards Barn

The Phillip Edwards Family were pioneers of 1860, landing in the Salt Lake Valley late that season. About 1874 he brought his family to the Charleston area to settle. The Edwards family have been here ever since and made many upbuilding contributions, ever since. A son, Phillip William Edwards settled on the corner of 3055 S 3600 W. Here he built a home and this barn. The center section was finished about 1890 and was made of native red pine timbers and lumber. He used it mainly for hay storage and his horses and farming operations.

The barn and farm have remained in the Edwards family for over a hundred years. During the time, the three grandsons; (Douglas, Floyd and Robert) ran it, two lean-tos and other sheds have been added and many other improvements have been made. One brother, Robert was lost in the war. Then Floyd moved his interests to Idaho about 1960. It was about this time that Douglas put new white pine siding on it. It is well-preserved and kept painted white for its use for cows and as a dairy barn, with grain and hay storage.

Informant: Douglas C Edwards

3-31-98 rrg

